WHY INVEST IN THE ISLE OF MAN?

1. BUSINESS ENVIRONMENT

The main reason that people look to the Isle of Man when considering incorporating an offshore company is because of its strong reputation as an established international business and finance centre in a low tax jurisdiction with a reputable regulatory environment that is independent of the UK.

However, the Isle of Man has numerous advantages to attract investment and offshore incorporations to its shores, such as its business attitude, with the Isle of Man being ranked 4th for most business friendly region in Europe.

Tax Advantages of the Isle of Man

- 0% corporate income tax (dependant on certain circumstances. For example, companies engaged in banking or Isle of Man property transactions may be subject to a 10% tax rate).
- Dividends made to non-residents are taxed at 0%.
- No withholding tax.
- No capital gains tax.
- No stamp duty.
- No thin capitalisation rules.

- Losses can be carried forward indefinitely provided a continuity of business test is satisfied. There are also provisions for loss relief within groups of companies.
- Double tax relief is available for foreign tax paid.
- No inheritance tax.

Other Advantages of the Isle of Man

- There are no exchange controls or other financial restraints imposed on an Isle of Man company.
- Isle of Man has shown that the government is agile and responsive so change can be delivered faster than in larger jurisdictions.
- Excellent telecoms infrastructure and broadband coverage.
- Political and economic stability.
- Long established legal system.
- Sophisticated and extensive banking system.

SECTORS

Banking & Insurance

The banking system is similar to that in the UK - all current accounts, deposit accounts and other services offered by UK and international banks are also offered by the Isle of Man.

Interest rates are comparable to those prevailing in the London Money Market, and whilst the island's currency is sterling, deposits are accepted and competitive returns are available in all major currencies of the world.

The island's banking industry is dominated by subsidiaries or branches of the main UK clearing banks and building societies, although there are many other UK and foreign banks present.

Financial Services

With the rapid growth of the Isle of Man as an international finance centre, came the need to strengthen the island's image and reputation with proper supervision and effective regulation. This task falls to the Financial Services Authority (FSA).

The Financial Services Authority licenses and supervises all banks, investment businesses, fiduciary businesses, collective investment schemes and building societies carrying out business in the island.

Manufacturing

The manufacturing industry is a main provider of full time employment on the island and second only to finance in terms of growth and contribution to the economy. Two hundred firms are engaged in this sector, varying from small family businesses to major employers.

All are eligible for support from the Government under a financial incentive scheme designed to encourage the growth and development of exports, and to increase the range of employment opportunities available to the island's people.

Tourism & Commerce

Mass tourism, which was prevalent in past decades, has given way to specialist, niche market - such as short breaks, special interests and special events.

With this in mind, the Isle of Man is well-placed to develop further walking and activity holidays; the market for heritage and vintage transport, and motor sport events far beyond the TT festival.

Agriculture, Fisheries & Forestry

These traditional industries and their ancillary services may play a less significant role on the Isle of Man than they once did, but they still provide considerable employment and have political, social and strategic importance.

The Isle of Man Government, through its Department of Environment, Food and Agriculture, makes available a wide range of financial support measures and services by way of grants, loans and subsidies to farmers and growers.

Aviation

The Isle of Man Aviation Register opened for business in March 2007. It was designed to attract owners of private, non-commercial aircraft in Europe, as a registry in a European time zone was required to look after the steadily increasing number of European-owned aircraft.

Space Industry

Since 2009, the Isle of Man has steadily built a portfolio of space-related businesses and incentives, and the island is now recognised as a significant niche player.

The world's first International Institute for Space Commerce (IISC) was established on the island, and is based at the International Business School in Douglas and opened in October 2008.

E-Business

The Isle of Man offers an ideal location to facilitate the growth of global e-business. With a first-class telecommunications structure and a low tax environment, it is able to attract e-business from around the globe.

A key location for high-tech financial services, the island continues to develop its legal and technological structure to cope with growing business demand. It offers comprehensive support services such as website design, software and hardware suppliers and internet payment gateway facilities.

E-Gaming

The Manx Government is committed to the development of an internationally competitive e-gambling business environment.

A highly advanced technical and telecommunications structure, low duty and a zero-rated structure enable the island to be at the forefront for future expansion.

2. PROPERTY PRICES

The average price of a house in the Isle of Man is £271,200 with flats going for an average price of £149,991. Rent in a normal area averages around £830 per month and in an expensive area will be £1400 per month.

The island's housing market has seen steady growth throughout 2019 but after a period of being a buyers' market it is now a sellers' market.

3. EDUCATION

Enrolment

Total - 11,710
Primary - 6,492
Secondary - 5,218

There are 37 schools – 32 primaries and 5 secondaries, and the University College Isle of Man (UCM), which offers professional, exam/degree and recreational courses for adults.

4. BREXIT

What is the Isle of Man's current relationship with the EU?

The Isle of Man is not part of the European Union (EU) in its own right, and is not included within the scope of the UK's membership of the EU. The Isle of Man makes no financial contribution to the European Union nor does it receive any funding from the EU. It is not represented in the European Parliament but the island does have a limited relationship with the EU under what is known as Protocol 3.

What is Protocol 3?

The relationship between the Isle of Man and the EU is set out in Protocol 3 to the UK's Act of Accession by which the UK became a member of the EU. The Protocol allows the island to be part of the EU customs area which permits the free movement of manufactured goods and agricultural products in trade between the island and the Union, as well as free movement of people between the Isle of Man and the European Union.

Apart from the requirements of the Protocol - in particular that the Isle of Man must apply the same treatment to all natural and legal persons of the EU - other Union rules do not apply.

The island's relationship with the EU allows it to trade with countries in the European Economic Area (EEA) similarly to its trade with the Union itself.

Will Brexit affect the Isle of Man's relationship with the United Kingdom?

The Isle of Man is a British Crown Dependency with Her Majesty the Queen as Sovereign. The Isle of Man is not part of the United Kingdom and is internally autonomous and self-governing with its own independent legal, administrative and fiscal systems. The island's parliament, Tynwald, legislates for the island. There is nothing to suggest Brexit will have an impact on the underlying constitutional relationship between the Isle of Man and the United Kingdom.

Irrespective of the UK's future relationship with the EU, the UK is the island's most important trading partner and the Isle of Man is in a currency union with the UK. The free movement of goods and people between the two is of utmost importance.

What opportunities may there be for the Isle of Man after the UK leaves the EU?

The Isle of Man Government is identifying and analysing opportunities associated with the UK's withdrawal from the EU.

As has been set out in the Fourth Interim Report, the main opportunities for the island lie in the extent to which the Isle of Man can participate alongside the UK in new trading arrangements with third countries and, indeed, examining the relationship with the UK and assess opportunities to increase mutual competitiveness. The focus at this stage is ensuring that the Isle of Man is positioned effectively to take advantage of opportunities as they arise. Because the island is in Customs Union with the UK under the 1979 Customs and Excise Agreement there is free movement of goods between the UK and IOM.

As a result, it is highly likely that the island will have to be included in the UK's new free trade agreements, at least as far as they relate to trade in goods. However, the nature of the individual agreements may not always be in the best interests of the Manx economy so the island will give every opportunity careful consideration.

Advantages

- The Isle of Man is treated as being part of the EU for Customs, Excise and VAT purposes, but deemed outside the EU for all other taxes. This provides surety for Customs and Excise matters whilst allowing flexibility for other purposes.
- Locating in the Isle of Man brings your EU customer closer to you, reducing the length of the EU supply chain and providing the opportunity to enhance profits.
- Being located in the Isle of Man also allows businesses to potentially minimise their taxation footprint and provides full access to EU markets, whilst remaining outside the EU for most non Customs and Excise regimes.
- The Isle of Man is a crown dependency. It is not part of the UK, and it is not in the EU. Instead, it enjoys a special relationship with the bloc through a protocol in the UK's treaties, and sits inside the customs union. While some EU rules do apply to the island, still more EU and UK laws are adopted voluntarily in an effort to secure market access – a process that puts into domestic law standards exporters would have to adhere to anyway. The net result is that, while some sovereignty is lost, free trade in goods and agricultural products is secured.

TAX

FAVOURABLE TAX RATES

The island's taxation system is completely separate from that of its neighbours, so individuals and companies resident in the Isle of Man enjoy complete independence from the United Kingdom on matters of direct taxation.

There are no capital gains, inheritance tax or stamp duty, and personal income tax has a 10% standard rate and 20% higher rate. In addition there is a tax cap on total income payable of £125,000 per person, which has encouraged a steady flow of wealthy individuals and families to settle on the island. For this reason property prices at the higher end of the market are very buoyant.

Individuals

There are generous personal allowances (2016/17 this stands at £8,500 per person, £17,000 for married couples) with relief for deductions such as interest paid (mortgage, loan and overdraft interest up to a maximum of £7500), which are adjusted annually in the Manx Budget.

The 10% standard rate is payable on the first £10,500 of income above the personal allowance with a top marginal rate of 20%.

Individuals who are resident are required to file an annual return of their worldwide income, and married couples may elect for separate assessment if they so wish.

Remuneration from employments and Manx source pensions is assessable on the basis of the income of the current year, whereas income from self-employment and investments is normally assessed on the basis of the income of the preceding year.

Companies

The island has a standard zero rate of corporate tax, although a higher rate of 10% is applied to banking activity and retail businesses with annual taxable profits of £500,000 or more.

There is a 20% rate of income tax on income from Isle of Man land and property i.e. rental or property development profits.

A modern Companies Registry enables speedy and efficient access to company records to local and international users, and a benign tax environment exists for corporate entities. This enhances the island's reputation as a centre of excellence for company administration and services.
